There are a large number of shad in the Shetucket river, the most for many years. They were first noticed Wednesday, and there were many out to get a glimpse of them in the water just below the dam. There have only been a few shad in the river for a number of years past, but this year the rains are said to have purified the water from the dyes from the mills, and the fish have taken advantage of the opportunity. Most of the shad are of good size, but as yet none have been caught by local fishermen.

Cities Should Work Together.

President Cary called upon A. J.
Campbell, president of the New London Business Men's association, who spoke upon the value of harmony between all the cities in the eastern end of the state for the benefit of this part of the state, and also explained what had been done in New London through an outside company that conducted a system of credit rating of New London people. He thought, he said, that hetter bookkeeping on the part of merchants oftentimes and a better following up of creditors would do much to keep down bad debts. Mr. Campbell's interesting remarks were accorded a unanimous vote of thanks.

Mrs. Charles H. Beebe.

The remains of Mrs. Charles H. Beebe arrived here Tuesday evening from Spies N. C., and were taken in charge by Henry Allen & Son. At 12.30 o'clock Wednesday noon services were held at Christ Episcopal church at which Rev. Nellson Poe Carey, rector of the church, officiated. Relatives and friends were in attendance, those from out of town being Samuel J. Elder of Boston, James C. Marriott of New York and Miss Lillian Mallory of Mystic. Accompanying the body north were Harwood Beebe and Whitwell Coxe of Boanoke, Va.

The vested choir of the church under the direction of W. F. Habekotte sang O Paradise and Lead, Kindly Light. There were many handsome floral remembrances. The bearers were Whitwell Coxe, C. P. Cogswell, Charles W. Gale and Charles H. Preston. Burial was in Yantic cemetery, where a committal service was read.

Mrs. Beebe was born in Baltimore, Md. Thanksgiving day, 1858, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harwood of Amspolis, Md. her madden name bems Esther McKinley Harwood. She married Charles Hamilton Beebe, who was secretary and general manager of the Norwich Lock shop, and for about

His health was poor then and he died in Rohnoke in 1885.

Mrs. Beebe's death was sudden. She was out riding alone with a spirited horse which bolted and threw her out horse which boited and threw her out and she received injuries which caused her death. The dogs which accompanied her guarded the body until found by men passing along the highway and they notified her relatives, five miles away. She was a member of Christ Episcopal church in this city. She owned mining and timber land in North Carolina and for six years had resided at Spies, moving there from Roland park, Baltimore, in 1903. She was a woman of spiendid personality and possessed a generous and loyal nature. No one came to her in need and was denied assistance, and the traits of her excellent character have been transmitted to her children. She is survived by two daughters, Mary is survived by two daughters, Mary Elder Beebe and Emily Noyes Beebe and Harwood Beebe, the last named being a civil engineer.

The monthly meeting of the board of trade, attended by about seventy-five and transacting business of importance to the city was held Wednesday evening in the post hall at the Buckingham Memorial being called to order shortly after 8 o'clock by President Frederic W. Cary, and Secretary H. W. Tibbits read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved. President Cary read the following names, appointed as a committee to act for the board of trade in the company had been established an they had leased the property. President Cary, Mr. Tracy and Robert V. that we had no right to see the books in this case, as the company was askfor no money, but was bringing valuable machinery into town. He had no idea of the value of the machinery, he replied to Mr. Browning's question.

Judge Lucius Brown asked how long the company had been established and Frank H. Smith questioned whether they had leased the property. President Cary, Mr. Tracy and Robert W.
Perkins answered, and it was stated that the company had been in Westerly about two years, had another plant in Paterson, and had leased the property till April, 1911, with a privilege of a renewal for five years at an increased rental, and also an option of purchase on the property. The lease is guaranteed by a New York company with an exceptionally good rating. This settled the matter and a vote in the affirmative was passed.
